“ I only just found out about Darren's passing.

My heart just broke a little. Darren was a light in my life during some dark times. We were mostly close when I was in college. His gentleness and kindness made it possible for me to get through that part of my life intact. We only kept in touch sporadically over the past 12 years, and now I wish I had tried harder to maintain that friendship. My heart goes out to his family (I remember eating twice-baked potatoes at his parents house, and that made me a fan of them for life!) and his friends.

“ My time spent with Darren was short but his presence has resonated with me since. Darren was smart, funny, outgoing, and a genuine person. His heart was as huge as his smile, and his smile was always present. I'm sorry Darren is no longer with us. I wish his family and friends my condolences.

you made such an effect on my life. No one made me laugh harder and feel more inspired and respected. I regret not spending more time with you and embracing you before our friendship. No passing has effected me more then you to this day. Your genius comedy and brilliance of creation has me thinking everyday how to better our lives, the energy in myself, and the things around me. Your songs hit me extremely emotionally and spiritually especially "stretch." Im sad for not hearing it earlier. I know you are in a beautiful place now. I remember you in elementary school and wish I would have hung out with you back then. Why such a recent friendship has hit me so hard to loose, is beyond me. I was more understanding with the loss of my own grandparents. But this feels more painful. Im sorry to all the people that knew you much much longer then me. And I cant imagine how much heart ache they are experiencing. Your influence and compliment to life has effected me greatly. I thank you and your parents, for putting a major mark in my life, this community and expressing the passion in everything you did for us. I thank God for bringing you into this world, and I know you are in his hands.

Darren always brought his light into the room when he entered. He kept us laughing with his wit and his humor. I know that his friends and family will miss his light. I know that his friend on the other side will help him find his way "Home.".
