“ We first met up at the lake, having gone up as a group of mutual friends... Those were such carefree and happy times where we made everlasting memories. Throughout the years our lives continue to cross sometimes going for long periods of time without seeing each other but when we sites other we always picked up right where we left off as if they had not passed. You always welcomed me into your heart and your life and I was lucky to share the generosity that you gave to so many. Thank you for your friendship now and In eternity where once again we will meet again someday thank you for your friendship and thank you for always being here with all of us... Just in a different form. I opened Facebook messenger the other day and a message from you is when it opened up to you from 2013... I thought about it for minute knowing I didn't click on it and I thought yep, that was intentional..." Hi Elizabeth...I missed as you....and then the memory started coming back to me and I was wondering the last time I saw you which was memorial day I wish I could've given you one more hug and I wish we could've talked a little more that day. Re and then the memory started coming back to me and I was wondering the last time I saw you which was memorial day I wish I could've given you one more hug and I wish we could've talked a little more that day but the last memory I have of you was happy and smiling and just being you Rest In Peace my friend my friend 💜

“ Eli I am completely speechless and in disbelief that you have gone to be an amazing angel. You have more people that care and love you then anyone else I know. You have always brought such joy, with the biggest smile to everyone all the time. I don't remeber a time when you and Joey weren't smiling and spreading your love. To your family, I am so very sorry for the loss of mother, daughter, wife and friend. May you find some peace in the memories and love that was shared so deeply with you. Rest in peace ♡
