

Dr. Joseph Zimmerman

April 22, 1932 - March 27, 2014

Beloved father, grandfather and friend to all in need, passed away in the early morning hours of March 27th 2014.

He had a brilliant mind, a funny streak and an open heart to those in need.

Born in New York City on April 22, 1932

He graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Brooklyn College and then on to a fellowship at Iowa State University.

A Chemist and Psychopharmacologist, he earned his Ph.D., working at Walter Reed Army hospital in conjunction with the University of Maryland. Joe was a full professor of Psychology at Indiana University for many years. In time, Joe became an outstanding and well published scientist in behavioral research.

In later years, when he worked with patients as a licensed Clinical Psychologist, it was regardless of their ability to pay. He was authentic and always true to himself.

Joe will be sorely missed by his son Eric and his daughter Alyson, by his grandchildren Joshua, Noa, Michaela and Kai, by his daughter-in-law Laurie, his son-in-law John and all who were fortunate to know him.

Tribute Wall

DP

“ Joe was my dissertation chair. I was so sorry to have lost touch with him. I do remember his kindness to those in need, his generosity to his students, his care and guidance to those studying Psychology. He was a solid scientist and passed his regard for sound scientific method to his students. He was a skilled and caring teacher.

Dave Peterson, Ph.D.

Dave Peterson, Ph.D. - May 11, 2014 at 09:51 AM